Bachelor of Science in Human Resource Management

Human resource professionals serve as the link between management and employees and fill critical roles in talent acquisition, training and development, employee relations and employment laws.

Human resource management is a specialty relevant to the management of all organizations, regardless of industry, public or private sector, and nonprofit or for-profit status. The Bureau of Labor Statistics projects an average growth of nearly 20 percent in human resource positions over the next decade in Texas. Human resource professionals with a comprehensive understanding of the many facets of the profession and solid business acumen will be vital to the success of nearly every organization.

Careers in Human Resource Management

Upon graduation, students can find opportunities in any number of organizations as HR generalists, compensation and benefits analysts, training and development specialists, HR analysts, labor relations specialists and recruiters.

Human Resource Management at UT Dallas

The human resource management degree prepares students for a career in human resources by combining a general business education with knowledge specific to the various facets of the profession. Students will learn the fundamentals associated with talent acquisition, training and development, total rewards, employee engagement and change, labor relations, leadership and how these are applied within companies.

Successful graduates will be able to:

• Demonstrate knowledge of the various functions within human resource management and how they interrelate, and apply this knowledge in creating a comprehensive HR system to support a business.
• Understand the major employment laws governing hiring, mobility, safety, pay, privacy, labor relations, and legal and ethical compliance in policy and practice.
• Exhibit skills to effectively manage the flow of talent into and through organizations and to strategically utilize compensation to attract, retain and motivate qualified employees.
• Demonstrate proficiency in the process of identifying, measuring and developing the performance of individuals and teams, and aligning their performance with the strategic goals of the organization.
• Support the training and development of talent within organizations and advance change management efforts at the individual, group and organizational levels of intervention.

The Human Resource Management program at UT Dallas has been recognized by the Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM) as being aligned with the SHRM curriculum guidelines. In addition to ensuring the curriculum covers the content most relevant to HR, students from UT Dallas will be able to take the SHRM-CP, or certification exam, prior to graduation.

Jindal School students must complete an internship as a requirement for their major. The Jindal School’s fully staffed Career Management Center (CMC), working in tandem with the University’s Career Center, helps students prepare for and seek internships, as well as post-graduation employment. Both centers are staffed with licensed counselors who provide students with strategies for mastering job interviews, writing professional cover letters and resumes and connecting with campus recruiters, among other services.

Living Learning Community
