Bachelor of Science in Marketing

Marketing touches all aspects of modern living — whether it’s internal marketing in organizations or product placement or developing brand loyalty. Corporations, not-for-profit organizations such as hospitals and schools and even government agencies all see aspects of marketing as important to their business structure. The bachelor’s degree in marketing provides students with practical and theoretical training so they may make strategic, effective and ethical decisions in their careers. Students will learn how to communicate, effectively managing an on-line presence and set profitable and fair pricing.

The distinguishing feature of this marketing degree is its emphasis on quantitative analysis. The demand is growing for marketing professionals who are proficient in using the systems and analytical tools to analyze data in order to make better marketing decisions.

Careers in Marketing
Graduates seek careers in marketing, management, sales, market analytics and advertising, promotions and digital (social media) marketing.

Jindal School students are encouraged to procure and complete an internship as a requirement for their major. The Jindal School’s fully staffed Career Management Center (CMC), working in tandem with the University’s Career Center, helps students prepare for and seek internships, as well as post-graduation employment. Both centers are staffed with licensed counselors who provide students with strategies for mastering job interviews, writing professional cover letters and resumes and connecting with campus recruiters, among other services.

Marketing at UT Dallas
A 120-hour curriculum leads to a degree in marketing. All undergraduate degrees require a core of 42 hours. In the core courses, students learn theories and analytical techniques that can be applied to the functional areas of business, such as marketing.

In the core marketing courses, students learn and apply theories and analytical techniques to marketing projects, cases and exercises.

To obtain a minor in marketing, students must complete the requirements for their major and take 12 hours of marketing core courses and 6 hours in marketing-guided electives.

Key features of student-focused programs and experiences:

- Staffed with faculty who have consistently obtained high teaching evaluations and awards.
- Student chapter of the American Marketing Association.
- Sponsored marketing competitions.
- Invited industry guest speakers in courses.
- Top marketing internships through the Naveen Jindal School of Management Career Management Center.
- Jindal School Marketing Advisory Board includes leading practitioners in analytics, sales and general marketing.

Professional Sales Concentration
The Professional Sales Concentration offers academic specialization and benefits from its direct relationship to the JSOM Center for Professional Sales. Sales executives and sales teams from top companies in the DFW market and the nation assist in the development and execution of the market-leading sales curriculum. Students are taught and then challenged by industry sales leaders.

Professional Selling classes emphasize simulated and live sales throughout the program with most major courses ending in competition-style events judged by industry executives and hiring managers. Most students who become sales certified via the University Sales Center Alliance experience multiple offers prior to graduation, higher base and on-target pay packages, and become top performers in their respective jobs after graduation.

Living Learning Community
The Naveen Jindal School of Management Living Learning Community is a special opportunity for incoming freshmen interested in pursuing a business degree. These select stu-students live together in on-campus housing, attend classes together and participate as a group in social activities. For information, contact Associate Dean Marilyn Kaplan at mkaplan@utdallas.edu.

Management Honors Program
The Charles and Nancy Davidson Management Honors Program (DMHP) gives select undergraduate students the opportunity to enhance their experience in the Naveen Jindal School of Management. DMHP students receive opportunities to improve their leadership skills, and work closely with UT Dallas professors.

DMHP program benefits include:
- Smaller class sizes.
- Professional development events.
- Community service events.
- Scholarships.
- Travel opportunities.
- Honors notation on diploma.
