Tricks for Talking

A summer camp for children and adolescents who stutter.

Callier Center for Communication Disorders

Tricks for Talking...

- Is a comprehensive speech therapy experience for children and adolescents ages 3 -15 years.
- Combines individual speech therapy with group therapy.
- Provides a fun atmosphere where children learn strategies to improve speech fluency.
- Is a program developed by speech-language pathologists who tailor therapy to each child's individual needs.
- Provides an opportunity to interact with other children who stutter and practice newly acquired skills.
- Offers a place where the whole family can learn to help children overcome their speech difficulty by attending the family education classes that run concurrently with the program.

The Program is Unique

Tricks for Talking's philosophy is that talking should be fun. The program was developed to provide an opportunity to learn fluency enhancing strategies and to practice them in a fun environment that enhances carryover into every day speech.

Children practice newly acquired skills with one-on-one clinician support.

The program combines direct instruction in fluency enhancing techniques with games and other exciting activities, including:

- Videotaped productions
- Interactive games
- Dramatic play activities

Program prerequisite
