Aviation Background

After graduation in June, 1916, Amelia enrolled for the 1916-18 fall term in Ogontz School where she remained until December, 1917. While visiting her sister in Toronto, joined Red Cross as a volunteer aide at Spadina Military Hospital. Became captivated by exploits of the Royal Flying Corps. Moved to Northampton, Mass. where she took a course in engine mechanics.

Enrolled at Columbia as a premedical student, but after a year 1919 went to Los Angeles, CA. Took her first airplane ride with Frank Hawks at Glendale, CA.

After lessons with aviatrix Neta Snook, Earhart soloed in June 1921-22 1921 in a Kenner Airster. At twenty-five bought her first plane, a Kenner Canary, in which she set woman’s altitude record of 14,000 feet.

Moved to Medford, Mass and taught English to immigrant 1924-26 factory workers through U of M extension program. In 1926 became a social worker at Denison House, a Boston settlement. Continued to fly as Kenner demonstration pilot at Denison Airport near Squantum.

On June 17 became first woman passenger to fly the Atlantic 1928 with pilot Wilmer Stultz. Wrote a book about the flight entitled 20 Hrs. 40 Min., lectured, and became aviation editor of Cosmopolitan and vice-president of Ludington Airlines (later National Airways.)

Participated in first Women’s Air Derby from Santa Monica, CA, 1929 to Cleveland, OH. Was active in Zonta International, a service club for professional women. Became a founding member of the Ninety-Nines, international organization for licensed women pilots and its president until 1933.

Made several transcontinental flights in an autogiro as publicity 1931
On February 7, married George Palmer Putnam. Her husband arranged for publication of her later books, The Fun of It (1932) and the posthumous Last Flight 1937.

On May 21-22 piloting a Lockheed Vega became first woman to fly solo across Atlantic.

Flew first solo flight from Honolulu to U.S. mainland. First person to fly non-stop from Mexico City to Newark, New Jersey. President Edward C. Elliott appointed her career counselor to Purdue’s women students and special advisor in aeronautics. Purdue trustees purchased a Lockheed Electra for her

On July 2 flew from New Guinea eastward across Pacific and was not heard from again.

Amelia Earhart Commemorative Stamp Collection

Provenance

The Amelia Earhart Stamp Collection was given to the History of Aviation Collection in Austin, TX in 1965 by Clara Studer, a resident. Ms. Studer launched a campaign for a commemorative stamp in honor of Amelia Earhart. By soliciting the help of other pioneer women pilots such as Fay Gillis Wells and Louise McPhedridge Thaden, Ms. Studer and friends contacted congressmen as well as senators. These women gradually gained the support of newspapers throughout the country. The list of folder contents that follows documents their efforts to rally endorsement and includes biographical information about and 21 photographs and a sketch of Earhart that was used in the campaign. On July 24, 1963 in Atchison, Kansas, the stamp was officially issued. The collection, in one archival box, contains 315 items.
