Human resource professionals serve as the link between management and employees and fill critical roles in talent acquisition, training and development, employee relations and employment laws.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics projects an average growth of nearly 20 percent in human resource positions over the next decade in Texas. Human resource professionals with an understanding of the many facets of the profession and solid business acumen will be vital to the success of nearly every organization.

Careers in Human Resource Management

Graduates can find opportunities as HR generalists, compensation and benefits analysts, training and development specialists, HR analysts, labor relations specialists and recruiters.

Human Resource Management at UT Dallas

The human resource management degree prepares students for a career in human resources by combining a general business education with knowledge specific to the various facets of the profession. Students will learn the fundamentals associated with talent acquisition, training and development, total rewards, employee engagement and change, labor relations, leadership and how these are applied within companies.

Successful graduates will be able to:

- Demonstrate knowledge of the various functions within human resource management and how they interrelate, and apply this knowledge in creating a comprehensive HR system to support a business.
- Understand the major employment laws governing hiring, mobility, safety, pay, privacy, labor relations, and legal and ethical compliance in policy and practice.
- Exhibit skills to effectively manage the flow of talent into and through organizations and to strategically utilize compensation to attract, retain and motivate qualified employees.
- Demonstrate proficiency in the process of identifying, measuring and developing the performance of individuals and teams, and aligning their performance with the strategic goals of the organization.
- Support the training and development of talent within organizations and advance change management efforts at the individual, group and organizational levels of intervention.

The Human Resource Management program at UT Dallas is aligned with Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM) curriculum guidelines. Additionally, students from UT Dallas will be able to take the SHRM-CP, or certification exam, prior to graduation.

All Jindal School undergraduate students must complete an internship and 100 hours of community service in order to graduate. The Jindal School’s fully staffed Career Management Center (CMC), working in tandem with the University’s Career Center, helps students prepare for and seek internships, as well as post-graduation employment. The school’s Undergraduate Programs office directs and coordinates the community service requirement.

Living Learning Community

The Naveen Jindal School Living Learning Community is a special opportunity for incoming freshmen interested in pursuing a business degree. Living Learning Community students live together in on-campus housing, attend classes together and participate as a group in social activities.
