The following students have either conducted, presented, or published their original research in Holocaust Studies and related fields. Many of them received support from the Istvan and Zsuzsanna Ozsváth Research Fund, which was created in honor of our beloved Dr. Zsuzsanna Ozsváth and her late husband Dr. Istvan Ozsváth, a founding professor of mathematics at UT Dallas. The funds help students in to conduct original research in archives and libraries and to attend and present that research at conferences.

Rawad Alhashmi (PhD Candidate, Studies in Literature) presented at the Pacific Ancient and Modern Language Association Annual Conference in Hawaii. He also worked this summer with the Ackerman Center to translate key Holocaust texts into Arabic.

Diana S. Briones (MA Student, History of Ideas) interned at the Museo Memoria y Tolerancia in Mexico City. During this one-month summer internship, Ms. Briones will be specifically focusing on letters from three families sent from Austria to Mexico. They were originally in German and have been translated into Spanish. She will annotate and translate them into English under the supervision of Dr. Roemer.

Pedro González (PhD Candidate, History of Ideas) attended the Fourth Annual ISGAP-Oxford Summer Institute for Curriculum Development in Critical Antisemitism Studies at Oxford University. Mr. González’s research focuses on the intersections of torture, state-sponsored violence, ethics, and the historical changes affecting the perception of what it is to be a human being, with special focus being on anti-Semitism.

Shamim Hunt (PhD Candidate, History of Ideas) traveled to Germany to conduct archival research at the Erich Fromm Institute in Tubingen where there is an archive of hundreds of Fromm’s unpublished works. She also presented part of her thesis at the Third International Erich Fromm Seminar for Doctoral Students and Postdocs in Berlin.

Karl S. Sen Gupta (PhD Candidate, History of Ideas), Claire Soares (PhD Candidate, Aesthetic Studies), and Sarah Snyder (PhD Student, History of Ideas) presented papers in Kraków, Poland at the 11th Congress of the European Association for Jewish Studies Conference. In addition, Mrs. Snyder traveled to Gdansk, Poland to present at the Memory and Nostalgia Conference.

Cynthia Seton-Rogers (PhD Student, History of Ideas) presented at the British Association for Jewish Studies Annual Conference at Durham University. While in the U.K., she conducted additional research at the National Archives in London. She has also had her paper, “The Exceptions to the Rule: Jews in Shakespeare’s England” published in the academic journal European Judaism.

Amal Shafek (PhD Student, Humanities) attended the Jews in Muslim-Majority Countries: History and Prospects Conference in Berlin. Ms. Shafek’s research focuses on the cultural history of Egyptian Jews in modern and contemporary Egypt. This conference brought together established scholars on this under-studied topic.

Kathryn Yates (MA Student, History of Ideas) traveled to Germany where she studied how museums and the arts community in Berlin work to support recent immigrants by promoting tolerance, empathy, and understanding within an increasingly diverse population.
