THE JEWS IN CHINA
by Prof. PAN Guang

September 10th, 2016
7:00pm-9:00pm. ATC Lecture Hall

Jewish Refugees in China
From the middle of the 19th Century, when the old Jewish community in Kaifeng was assimilated, new Jewish communities began to emerge in Hong Kong, Shanghai, Harbin and Tianjing. During the Holocaust, Shanghai became a safe haven for Jewish Refugees from Nazi Europe and accepted more Jewish refugees than those taken in by Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and India combined. In this lecture Dr. PAN Guang will give an inside look into the lives of Jewish communities in China throughout history.

Prof. PAN Guang
Dr. PAN Guang is Vice Chairman and Professor of Shanghai Center for International Studies, Director of SCO (Shanghai Cooperation Organization) Studies Center in Shanghai, Dean of Center of Jewish Studies Shanghai (CJSS) and Vice President of Chinese Association of Middle East Studies. He is International Council Member of Asia Society in USA, Senior Advisor of China-Eurasia Forum in USA, and Senior Advisor on Anti-terror Affairs to Shanghai Municipality and Ministry of Public Security of PRC. He has conducted research all over the world, given lectures across the globe and published books and articles on a variety of topics.

For more information:
Web: ah.utdallas.edu/confucius    Phone: 972-883-4860    Email: confucius@utdallas.edu

Event of “Jewish Refugees in Shanghai” Exhibition
(September 1-30, 2016, the Edith O’Donnell Arts and Technology Building)