6) OLD BUSINESS
   a. Ad Hoc Committee – Historian
      Lydia Blackwell will chair the ad hoc committee to review the policies and procedures for Staff Council and make a proposal to staff council about adding a Historian to the elected officials of Staff Council.

7) NEW BUSINESS
   a. Suggestions
      i. 2012-001: Parking Lines on Lots A-D
         Lots A-D have fresh coat of pavement, but there are no lines painted on the new loop road part of the parking lot in Lots A and B. Lots C and D have fading paint lines. It is causing a lot of problems in parking the vehicles. Could you forward this to the appropriate departments to handle? Thank you, Concerned staff members Wendy Newton made a motion to move the suggestion to the Parking and Transportation Department. The motion was seconded by Kimberly Flicker. The voting response was 11 favorable, 16 opposed. The motion failed. Daniel Calhoun made a motion to move the suggestion to the Benefits Committee to act upon and be responsible to follow up with the suggestion. Carol Lanham seconded the motion. The voting response was 22 favorable, 5 opposed.
      ii. 2012-002: PeopleSoft Roundtable
         I would like to implement staff development training - primarily on PeopleSoft modules - plus other job aids including live data hands-on, online user manuals, PowerHour seminars, brown-bag lunch-n-learn, perhaps offered monthly. I feel this will be an important conduit of communication and education, and morale building effort for staff who are currently struggling with new or unfamiliar tools. I suggest that HR, Business Affairs, IR, and Staff Development Committee collaborate on this effort, with a small budget through Business Affairs, to build a confident and successful team moving into the future.
         Tracey Tatum made a motion to move the suggestion to the Staff Development Committee. Arturo Elizondo seconded the motion. The voting response was unanimously favorable.
b. State of the University Address – November 8th

c. University Employee Service Awards

Dr. Daniel has requested assistance with the University Employee Service Awards. In an effort to save money, the University is looking at possibly scaling down the awards. Possible suggestion is to scale back and not present an award every five years. Dr. Daniel is looking for feedback on this proposal.

- The University Employee Service Awards are important and the employees enjoy receiving them. – Tracey Tatum
- It was thought that employees could request a donation to be made in place of the award. – Victoria Winters
- The Facilities’ Management Employees enjoy receiving the token of appreciation and the awards can be seen throughout the Facilities’ offices. – Carol Lanham
- The Service Awards are a small expense to the University in comparison to rewarding and encouraging the employees. – Wendy Newton
- It is understood that the Service Awards require a lot of paperwork and follow-up. – Dr. Murray Leaf
- The Service Awards cannot be that large of a cost to the University in comparison to other expenses. – Tracey Tatum
- The budget can be scaled back on the Service Awards, but recognition should be vamped up in other ways to show appreciation to employees. – Kimberly Flicker
- The Staff Council feels recognition every five years is necessary, the awards can vary. – Rochelle Peña
- The award could be a simple “Whoosh” pin with colored gems to show recognition for every five years. – Tracey Tatum
- An opportunity to shake hands with the University President and a commemorative photo would show appreciation. – Lin Maute
- In response to the number of awards that have not been picked up. An award does not need to be purchased for an employee who does not want to receive one. – Sandee Goertzen
- In regards to expenses, why do we have to have food at every event? – Lynn Butler
- A committee could be formed by Staff Council with the University Service Awards. – Tracey Tatum
- If a committee is formed for Service Awards it should be a University Wide Committee. – Daniel Calhoun

Ms. Peña closed the discussion on the University Service Awards with the Staff Council Representatives voicing that recognition for the service of employees is important every five years; the key issue being the recognition, not necessarily the award. A certificate or pin with the years of service could be considered.
